GASB, FASB or Something Else

Listening to enthusiastic applause at the recently held Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA) annual conference in Anaheim one would have thought it was the Tuesday night event starring Kenny Loggins. Although Mr. Loggins garnered a tremendous amount of applause I am speaking of the applause received by Mr. Thomas Glaser, President of GFOA, when in his president's address he spoke of the GFOA's Executive Board vote in December 2006 to reassess the Government Accounting Standards Board's (GASB) continued role as the authoritative accounting standard-setting body for state and local governments.

reporting for state and local governments came to be what it is today I think it is important to take a look back.

The Municipal Finance Officers Association (MFOA), now known as the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA) was founded in 1906 to actively support the advancement of governmental accounting, auditing, and financial reporting. In 1934 MFOA established the National Committee on Municipal Accounting (NCMA), which began to promulgate accounting standards for governments.

In 1948, this committee was replaced by another MFOA-sponsored group, the “...unless it is agreed by all parties that standards for financial accounting and reporting will be based upon needs arising out of actual practice and that accountability for non-financial matters is not an appropriate objective then no change has been made.”

Glaser stated that GASB's insistence to move beyond traditional boundaries of accounting and financial reporting (“Service Efforts and Accomplishments Reporting” as an example) caused the GFOA Board to take their position.

Glaser indicated that one specific alternative to be explored is the possibility of transferring responsibility for setting accounting standards for state and local governments from the GASB to the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB), which currently sets accounting standards for business enterprises and not-for-profit organizations.

In order to understand how the setting of standards for accounting and financial National Committee on Governmental Accounting, which itself was eventually expanded and renamed the National Council on Governmental Accounting (NCGA).

The MFOA's guidance was incorporated into various editions of a publication that came to be known commonly as the “blue book”. In 1974, the AICPA issued their accounting and auditing guide “Audits of State and Local Governmental Units” (ASLGU), which stated that the AICPA deemed the 1968 Blue Book to be GAAP for governmental units. In the late 1970's the NCGA began to issue statements and interpretations. Eventually, the NCGA decided that these pronouncements, rather than the blue book, should be authoritative.

In 1984, the GFOA called for an end to the National Council on Governmental Accounting (NCGA) because the GFOA believed the GASB offered a more effective means of achieving its goal of improved accounting and financial reporting for state and local governments.

The GASB was then formed as the independent standards setter for state and local governments after agreement by the Financial Accounting Foundation, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the Government Finance Officers Association, the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers, and seven organizations representing state and local government officials.

The GASB operates under the oversight of the Financial Accounting Foundation (FAF), which is responsible for funding the activities of both the GASB and its counterpart for private enterprise, the FASB. The Foundation is also responsible for selecting the members of both Boards and their respective Advisory Councils.

Eleven members of the Board of Trustees of the Foundation are nominated by eight sponsoring organizations and approved by the trustees. The eight sponsoring organizations are the American Accounting Association, American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, Association for Investment Management and Research, Financial Executives International, Government Finance Officers Association, Institute of Management Accountants, National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers and Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association. In addition five additional Trustees serve as at-large members and are selected by the Board of Trustees.

Given that the GFOA is now not the only party at the standards setting table and that the Board of Trustees of the Financial Accounting Foundation confirmed on November 28, 2006 that the Governmental Accounting Standards Board has the jurisdictional authority to include "service efforts and accomplishments" in its financial accounting and reporting standard setting activities, it is not likely the setting of standards and the responsibility for setting those standards will change any time soon.

I am not sure anything would be necessarily gained by shifting the standard setting to another body as the GFOA proposes. Regardless of who the standard setting body is, unless it is agreed by all parties that standards for financial accounting and reporting will be based upon needs arising out of actual practice and that accountability for non-financial matters is not an appropriate objective then no change has been made.

If we all work together on this maybe at some point we will have a real reason to applaud.

GFOA/CPFO Exam to be Offered During CSMFO's Annual Conference in Anaheim

By Agnes T. Walker (CPFO), South Bay Regional Public Communications Authority

GFOA has finally agreed to offer the Certified Public Finance Officer (CPFO) examinations during CSMFO's annual conference in Anaheim in March 2008. In the past several years, Viki Copeland of Hermosa Beach and I have co-hosted and co-proctored these exams in October/November. In place of this schedule, we have asked GFOA to allow the exams to be offered in the Spring. However, please note that other cities in California may be hosting the exams as well in the Fall this year.

The Anaheim Conference Host Committee has arranged to provide a room for the exams to be conducted on Tuesday, March 4, 2008. GFOA will be advertising this schedule shortly. Offering these exams during CSMFO's annual conference should provide greater opportunity for the members (especially those who are going to attend the conference anyway) to participate in the CPFO program, and may even generate interest from our colleagues from other states to visit California in the winter months.

The CPFO program requires candidates to take the following examinations:

1. Governmental Accounting, Auditing, and Financial Reporting
2. Cash Management and Investments

3. Debt Management
4. Operating and Capital Budgeting
5. Pensions & Benefits, Risk Management, and Procurement

If you have any questions, please contact GFOA. Information is available at GFOA.org/certification. Or, you may also contact me at awalker@rcc911.org or (310) 973-1802 extension 105.

Budget Reviewers Needed!!

Budgets are starting to come in for the 2007/08 Budget Awards Program. The first budget to be received this year was from the South Bay Regional Public Communications Authority.

Last year the Committee received approximately 150 budgets for review. Many budgets require two reviews so we are estimating we will need close to 300 reviewers this year. Thanks to everyone who responded to my email requesting reviewers; however, we still only have about 100 reviewers.

Now that the GFOA conference is over, your budget has been adopted, and the auditors aren't due for another month or so, please complete the Budget Reviewer Questionnaire and email or fax it to me. It can be found on the CSMFO website under the budget section. If you have reviewed budgets in the past, just send me an email with any updated contact information.

If you have any specific questions about the awards program, please contact me at (714) 573-6302 or via e-mail at cindyguziak@ocfa.org.
